SOUTH CAROLINA'S

SANTEE

STATE PARK

Santee State Park offers cabins, camping, biking, hiking, boating and fishing in the heart of one of the nation's best-known outdoors destinations – Santee Cooper Country.

The park sits along Lake Marion, one of the two lakes (the other's Moultrie) that gave birth to America's inland striped bass fishery. Together, the lakes cover more than 170,000 acres and now also are known for their abundant populations of huge catfish.

The park's rondette cabins, including 10 on piers over the lake, have been hosting outdoorsmen and families for generations. A community meeting building, with its large, screened-in grilling facility, also attracts groups.

Out in the lake across from the park is Lake Marion's flooded cypress forest. Pontoon boat tours into the lake's swampy headwaters are based out of the park's marina/park store.
